The article with which we have been favoured by the venerable Dr. Hildebrand, of Stockholm, Antiquary to the King of Sweden, on the Stafford Mint in anglo-saxon and anglo-norman times embodies information hitherto known only to a very small circle of numismatists. We have also to acknowledge a valuable communication on the same subject from Dr. L. Miiller, Director of the Royal Collections of Coins at Copenhagen while we are indebted to Professor Oscar Montelius, of the National Museum at Stockholm, for impressions of the anglo-saxon coins struck at the Stafford Mint. These coins are now for the first time engraved, and we believe we are correct in stating that nearly the whole of the information respecting the Stafford Mint is now for the first time published in English. Mr. W. H. Weldon,...
